

Warning to the governments of the region regarding mediation between terrorism and democracy

13.04.2026

We address this statement to our neighbors and the broader international community.

Recent efforts, coordinated by Mr. Shehbaz Sharif, the Government of Pakistan, and other regional actors, to facilitate ceasefire negotiations between the United States and the current authorities in Iran are a matter of deep concern. Such initiatives constitute an unjustified interference that does not reflect the will of the Iranian people.

We call upon Mr. Shehbaz Sharif, the Government of Pakistan, the Sultanate of Oman, and all other concerned regional authorities to carefully reconsider any steps that risk prolonging the survival of the present regime in Iran. Efforts to stabilize or legitimize a system that has been overwhelmingly rejected by the Iranian people will be seen as tacit support for a discredited order. The Iranian people have a long historical memory; they will remember which nations stood with them in their quest for freedom and dignity, and which did not, during this decisive period.

Past experience has repeatedly demonstrated that negotiations with the Islamic Republic reach only deadlock and further entrenchment. Appeals for extended dialogue or temporary arrangements serve merely to delay the fundamental change that so many Iranians seek. These efforts are neither welcomed nor regarded as genuine solutions by the Iranian people.

We strongly urge the governments of the region to recognize and respect the clear and growing demand of the Iranian people for a comprehensive change of regime. Lasting peace and stability in the Middle East can be achieved only through the establishment of a government in Iran that genuinely reflects the sovereign will of its citizens and adheres to internationally accepted norms of governance and human rights.

We firmly believe that any meaningful discussion on Iran's future must include authentic representatives who truly embody the aspirations of the Iranian people. In this regard, Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi stands as a central and unifying figure. His longstanding commitment to democratic principles, secular governance, and national unity has earned him the respect and support of a broad cross-section of Iranians both at home and abroad.

The Iranian people look to their neighbors and the international community to act with wisdom and principle at this historic moment.

With respect,

Long Live Iran
Iranian Monarchy Party
